

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

CREDITORS' RIGHTS AND REMEDIES, by Garrard Glenn, of the New York Bar; Special Lecturer in the Columbia Law School. (Little, Brown & Co., 1915.)

The author has attempted the first synthetic treatment of the means afforded by our jurisprudence for the realization of debts out of the debtor's property.

The student of law, hitherto gaining his knowledge from highly specialized works on specific branches of the general subject, with the correspondingly necessary loss of perspective, will find the author's production an invaluable aid in acquiring a serviceable basis upon which to build a deeper knowledge in any particular field, leading to a better and clearer understanding of the scope and limits of the subject in hand and its relation to the general subject.

The practitioner, while not finding the detailed and exhaustive discussion he requires for the case in hand, for the author admittedly does not attempt to compete with works on particular branches of the subject, as bankruptcy, etc., will nevertheless find that a careful study of the book will aid materially in a clearer understanding of the law.

W. L. P.

THE LAW OF ARRESTS (Second Edition), by Harvey Cortland Vorhees. (Little, Brown & Co., 1915.)

The author's first work on this subject appeared in 1904 and was received with warm approval by the profession. This, the second edition, contains within the span of two hundred and fifty pages a complete treatment of the law of arrest. The style of the book is clear and should prove intelligible to laymen. In fact, the book is peculiarly adapted to the needs of arresting officers, being especially comprehensive on points dealing with when an officer is acting within lawful limits. An abundance of carefully selected English and American authority is cited to sustain the statements laid down. A collection of helpful forms composes the last chapter in the book.

L. A.

BOOKS RECEIVED.

LIMITATIONS ON THE TREATY-MAKING POWER, by Henry St. George Tucker. (Little, Brown & Company, 1915.)

SOURCES OF ANCIENT AND PRIMITIVE LAW, by Albert Kocourek and John H. Wigmore. (Little, Brown & Company, 1915.)